Catalyst Releases Ninth Generation of its Flagship Product

CR 9.0 Features New Interface, Enhanced Search and Greater Ease of Use

DENVER—November 1, 2010—Catalyst Repository Systems, Inc., (www.catalystsecure.com), a pioneer in providing cloud-based document repositories for e-discovery and other complex legal matters, today announced the release of Catalyst CR version 9.0. Incorporating many user-requested enhancements, the latest version features a fully integrated production module, enhanced analytics and a new user interface.

New features in Catalyst CR 9.0 include:

- A revised user interface that provides more rapid and intuitive access to Catalyst CR.
- A fully automated and scalable production module that allows users to identify and folder documents for productions, convert and endorse them in a variety of formats, create load files, and then run productions themselves.
- Enhanced and faster “Refine Results” that allow users to analyze search results using a variety of fields, text and concepts.
- Searchable review folders allowing reviewers and administrators to build any combination of field and text searches.
- PowerSearch enhancements to make the multi-search utility even more scalable.
- The ability for administrators to delete records automatically as part of the initial analytics and culling process.
- New export options that provide faster output and more flexibility including MDB formats.

“This release marks the ninth generation of Catalyst CR,” said John Tredennick, Catalyst’s founder and CEO. “These user-requested features and enhancements represent a significant step towards putting complete control of the e-discovery process in the hands of Catalyst CR users, from processing to production.”
